The current economic climate has forced business owners to think outside the box and look to non-traditional sources for assistance with their business, especially new businesses. At a time of credit crunches, bank closures, reluctant venture capitalists and angel investors, it's not as simple as meeting with one person and finding a solution. Instead, working with your established team of advisors is critical.

To examine this topic for our readers, New Business Minnesota approached the Money Team of Financial Advisor Todd Terhorst of Diversified Wealth Management; Accountant Pam Ricker, Ricker & Associates, CPAs; Advisor on Self Directed IRAs and Real Estate IRAs Melissa Twaddle, Entrust Midwest, LLC; and Attorney Jeffrey O'Brien, Mansfield Tanick & Cohen. These individuals have established a team approach to business financing that is needed in these challenging times.

They will share more information in a free interactive workshop from 3 to 5 p.m. on January 21 at the DoubleTree Hotel Minneapolis-Park Place, St. Louis Park. New Business Minnesota will hold its monthly Startup Meetup networking event immediately following the workshop.
